

DAILY EXAMINER.

J. W. DOWNS, Editor and Proprietor

FRIDAY, JUNE 5, 1874.

Giddings was elected as the county seat of the new county of Lee, on the 3d instant.

It seems that the Kansas City Board of Trade are about to effect a material reduction in freight rates over the M., K. & T. Railroad. Now, if they can manage the Central, all right.

The Age wages an earnest war against Throokmorton, and in defense of Cook. The Constitutional Convention question again pokes its head up, and thrusts itself into our State politics. Well, let it come.

It will be seen by referring to our Latest by Mail, that the bold McKenzie is again over the border, and woe, woe to the greaser, who has been making too free with the property of the dwellers upon the raging river. Mac is the boy.

The Galveston Civilian writes up the attractions of that city as a summer resort. This is about the coolest, hot thing, we have seen this season. Now, the mountain regions of Texas, as a summer resort, can not be beaten, but her coast, when!

Col. Gustave Cook assumes the entire business and editorial control of the Age. Cook is a good writer, and we trust he will make the paper pay. Cook's Democracy is so exceedingly straight, that it leans backward a little, but the honesty of his intentions are above question. Success to him.

The fears of the New York Tribune may now be dismissed. Richardson is out of the Treasury. What was it that paper feared, an unequal division of the spoils, or that he (Richardson) would get away to Europe without paying his arrears to the Tribune? Why was not Richardson's incompetency, to draw it mildly, discovered before the Sanborn contracts came up?

We direct especial attention to the communication signed by Coryelle Granger. We remember to have seen the statements referred to, in the Sun, and refrained from publishing them, because from our intimate acquaintance with the people of that section, we doubted their correctness, and we are glad to publish the earnest disclaimer of our friend Coryelle Granger.

The Fort Worth Democrat takes the trouble to answer a political paragraph of the Register. We have learned that notice only keeps alive that sort of thing. It dies out when neglected, having no root. When the Register asserts that the present state of things in Texas, is referable to the present State administration, it is so far off the track, as to be beyond criticism. It knows that it is only the result of long years of Radical tyranny, that the State has only just emerged from.

What is sauce for the goose it seems is not to be sauce for the gander. The Cincinnati Times does not understand that the negroes want mixed schools there, and looks with an evil eye upon the proposition to mix the little darkeys and gutter rats of that city together, but wants the sons and daughters of the southern aristocracy to learn wisdom on the same bench with the offspring of their former slaves. There are a good many people North whose opinions of the merits of the Civil Rights Bill will be greatly modified when its provisions are brought home to them. Shade of Sumner, arise.

The great railroad systems of the West, and their managers and servants, are daily growing more restless under the heavy blows dealt them by the sturdy, determined farmers, who have borne their grinding avarice, and palpable injustice until forbearance has ceased to be a virtue. Here is a picture for you: Behold these immense money combinations—who have for so many years lorded it over the farmers of the West, the great meat and bread producers of the nation—now standing aghast and trembling before the simple, bare-armed, hard-handed plowmen, whose patient shoulders had become hardened to the burden, but whose energy, now properly directed, will force these western railroads to an equitable rate of pay for their services in transporting their produce to market.

WACO OUT IN THE WORLD.

Waco, Texas, is being prominently talked of as the best place in that State for the holding of a fair wherein should be represented all the enterprises of Texas, or at least those wishing to be represented. From all accounts, Waco must be growing very rapidly. One thing is certain, when Richard Coke, one of her most honored citizens, became Governor of the State, the city itself stepped at once to fame and general reputation.—Democrat's Democrat.

The selection of an honored citizen of Waco for Governor of the great State of Texas, is only one of the pleasant incidents in the history of our rising young city.

Just twenty years ago the writer of this article passed through the then frontier village of Waco. It was composed of a half-dozen houses, certainly not more. We remember, however, the impression made upon us by the beauty and fertility of the country surrounding it, and mentally we stuck a pin in the spot, as one whose career was to be worthy of following. Again, in 1860, we paid it a visit; we were struck with the progress that it had made in six brief years. Then, in the last days of '71, we moved our household gods to this point. The result of the last two and a half year's changes, improvements and labors, have more than justified the conclusions we came to in 1854.

Our business enterprises are many and important, the capital so employed is no mean sum. All legitimate branches of mercantile enterprise are represented, and our merchants compare favorably with others of the older cities east. They are broad-viewed, liberal and generous, and very justly proud of the splendid progress of the place, to which they have contributed in no small degree.

Our manufactures, while still in their infancy, yet give promise or fair results in a few years. Our railroad, the result of the energy and devotion of another of our honored citizens, Col. John T. Flint, has been, and is to be in the near future, the talisman to evoke the richest fruits of the glorious soils of the surrounding country. Our lawyers will compare for number and ability with any place of its class in the United States, and we have more gubernatorial material among them. Our churches, schools and benevolent institutions, attract the attention of visitors of every class and clime. Our newspapers (there our native modesty comes in) are fair, to say the least of them. We have two dailies (Democrat and the Texas Odd Fellow, a respectable class journal and the whitest, fairest and ablest Radical paper in Texas.

Waco holds no insignificant influence in the State, and we are proud that all her examples have heretofore been for good. The fact is, Brother "Brick," Waco is a "brick"-city, and now if you doubt our statements, consult our late Baptist visitors, or, what is better, come here and see for yourself.

The State Journal is dead. It will be cremated on the other side, no doubt, as that was pretty efficiently done on this. But if the devil has as much difficulty, as the people of Texas have had, in getting rid of it, the job will give them employment throughout eternity nearly.

Grasshoppers in Iowa.

(From the Council Bluffs (Ia.) Globe.)

Grasshoppers by the million are destroying the growing crops in the Eastern part of the country, as we glean from the Delta. The wheat fields of W. C. Barton and Robt. Motheral have especially suffered from their depredations. They commenced on three sides of Mr. Barton's wheat field, and though they have gone but a little way, they have literally swept every thing before them. Unless they soon develop their wings, and are carried off by the wind, Mr. B. will probably lose his entire field. At Mr. Motheral's they are not quite so bad, though there are enough of them to awaken serious apprehensions in that gentleman's mind. We hear of these pests in several localities in this vicinity. It is to be hoped that the scourge is not general, and that they may not do any serious damage. Farmers in this locality are far from feeling easy on the subject.

Danbury at the Court of St. James.

It is, I believe, no longer a secret that the purpose of Mr. Bailey's visit to Europe is to restore harmony among the members of the British royal family. The trouble arises, from the fact that the Princess of Wales and the Duchess of Edinburgh each claim precedence of the other, and when one enters the dining room before the other, or sits nearer to the head of the table, the defeated being refuses to eat and goes up stairs and lets down her back hair and screams. There is, therefore, not only grievous annoyance to the neighbors, who don't like such howling, but there is grave danger that one of the two lovely creatures will starve to death. Victoria has tried to induce them to behave, but in vain, and now Mr. Bailey has gone over to see what can be done about it. Immediately upon his arrival in England he will go to Windsor Castle, ring the front door-bell, and tell the hired girl to ask the girls down into the parlor. His general idea will be then to suggest that the two shall be shut up through the floor of the dining room at the same moment, by means of a couple of stage traps, and then be seated at a circular table. If this is not accepted, he will then suggest that they take turns about, or draw lots, or have their meals sent to their rooms. If they prove intractable, his notion is that he will write to the czar, explaining the matter to him, and insisting upon his compelling his daughter to behave, and he will then advise Disraeli to cut off the allowance of the girls until they reform. Then he will bid them good-by, and take his umbrella from the rack in the entry and go home to dinner, unless the folks at the castle ask him to stay. It is a high and holy mission, worthy of such a philanthropist, and when he returns with a glow in his heart and Victoria's annual subscription to the News tied up in the corner of his pocket handkerchief, he may very justly feel that he has not lived in vain.—Mac Adler, in Danbury News.

Only a year or two ago Queen Victoria prohibited by proclamation the sale of position in the British army, a practice full of the worst kind of abuses. A worse practice however continues in the management of the Established Church. Church livings are sold with little regard to the fitness of the purchaser to be the spiritual guide of the people of a parish, and no attention, whatever, is paid to their wish in the matter. These church livings are bought by rich young men or by their relatives, the same as other sorts of business are. The advertisements of them are printed in newspapers, with glowing descriptions of the opportunities of hunting, fishing, boating, and also of the chase. The scandal on account of these transactions has come to be used so effectively by other denominations that one of the bishops has called the attention of Parliament to it. He introduced a bill for the appointment of a committee to inquire into the abuses. He acknowledged that as the law stands, the vacancies in parishes must be filled by persons who had the right to appoint candidates, but he insisted that only such persons should be appointed who were satisfactory to the bishop and to the parishoners.

But little was done by the Grand Lodge, except placing work in the hands of committees. Its sessions will probably run over to Saturday evening. The Grand Royal Arch Chapter met at 2 p. m., and the Grand Commandery Knights Templar at 8 o'clock to-night.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 3.—The Senate has reported a bill to authorize the officers of United States steamers Monarchy to accept medals from the King of Spain.

In the Senate to-day, Windom's cheap transportation resolution was discussed at some length, and will be continued to-morrow.

The Senate to-day passed the consular diplomatic and pension appropriation bills, and then discussed, without action, the question of cheap transporation.

A committee from the New York Produce Exchange left New York last night, for the purpose of urging a reciprocity treaty with Canada, and had interviews to-day with the President and Secretary Fish. They were very favorably impressed with the reception of their views by these officials.

Gen. Bristol will probably enter upon his duties as Secretary of the Treasury on Friday.

AUGUST, June 3.—A gentleman, direct from the frontier, confirms the opinion that Gen. Mackenzie has crossed the Rio Grande, to punish the Mexican cattle stealers.

PARIS, June 2.—It is reported, on good authority, that Ferrero will soon order a general election; and if the monarchists are in the majority, he will propose the enthronement of the Prince of Asturias, under his own regency.

The debate on the Electoral bill will be continued to-morrow, when Ledra-Rollin will speak against the measure.

Brisson, in his speech of the bill would lead to a resolution on a plebiscite.

Gambetta, at Auvergne to-day, denounced the plebiscite as false in principle, and lying in homage to the national sovereignty.

All citizens should demand an appeal to the people by means of the general election. This was a vital question.

HAVANA, June 2.—The payment of foreign postage in specie has been required since yesterday.

MADRID, June 3.—Gen. Loma has been appointed Captain-General of the Basque Provinces.

BOGOTA, June 3.—A battle is imminent at Estale, where the Carlists are in great force.
